DEER SAID AT REVEALS SAD SAD SAD

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Although order had been restored in Constantinople today all the streets of the Turkish capital were virtually under martial law.

From Vienna comes the dispatch that the Turkish embassy there today issued a denial of the report attributed from Bucharest that the Sultan had been deposed and a republic set up in Turkey. The report was also contradicted in Sofia. Dispatches from Constantinople received here by way of the Russian capital strengthened the report that the Young Turk cabinet had served as ultimatum upon Sultan Mohammed V. His official days were numbered.

Two reports were current in this city. One was that the Turkish Crown Prince would be enthroned because of his sympathy for the sultanate, the other was that a republic was to be proclaimed.

The Turkish police corps today by Belgrade, were still in city today despite the authoritative announcement just last night that they had been recalled by Grand Vizier Shevket Pacha.

A number of other rumors have passed between Constantinople and the Turkish capital, but their content have not been revealed.

Turkish Cabinet Meets.

A meeting of the new Turkish Cabinet was held today. It was announced in telegrams from the Ottoman capital, in which the Turkish, reply to the news of the Powers was considered. Said Helmi, president of the Council of Ministers, presided over the Cabinet that they should not delay too long in presenting their answer to the Powers.

Warlike plans were eventually declared without a renewal of the war was the chief question here while apologetic dispatches. There was another meeting of the ambassadors at the Foreign Office for which no attempt was made to hide the gravity of the situation.

A news agency dispatch says that Enver Bey, who has assumed the title of chief of staff since the assumption of War Minister Nizam Pacha, has taken command of the army and has taken steps to reorganize it.

Arrests in Constantinople Still Continue.

The chief of the newspaper Istanbul continued in charge by soldiers because he dared to call the assembled army a murderer. A crowd of students attacked the newspaper office and wrecked it.

"Ragulation of Turkey."

Talati Bey, one of the leaders in the revolt which overthrew the Sultan of Constantinople, has been arrested by the "Napoleon of Turkey."

In an interview Talati Bey said that the Powers would be asked to wait until parliament has been convened before an answer is to be returned to the collective note.

Placards were everywhere posted in various parts of the city last night saying:

"Keep Anatolia, the holy city, at any cost." Thousands of these placards were distributed, chiefly in the Istanbul quarter.

According to a Russian telegram, British and Greek have entered an agreement by which Anatolia will be ceded to Greece. Greece, it is understood, will give only a small portion of the territory to be free to the world's conscience.

The British Labor party has issued a dispatch from Constantinople which states that the Sultan of Turkey has been deposed and a republic proclaimed by the Young Turks.

KING ALFONSO THANKS AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—President Taft today received the following telegram from King Alfonso of Spain in response to a dispatch of greeting: "These are the expressions of my deep gratitude for your kind wishes, which I warmly reciprocate to you and to the American people."

Mississippi Levee Breaks at Beulah: Fear Loss of Life

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 25.—A telephone message from Greenville today said the levee at Beulah, Miss., broke at 7 o'clock, and the water poured through a gap a thousand feet wide.

Families fled before the flood, great beautiful homes and fear of loss of life were entertained.

The levee at Beulah broke last Spring, causing millions of dollars' damage and drowning a number of families.

The flood threatens to sweep the whole lower delta region through which it went through the high water last year, causing heavy damage. Government engineers are hurrying men to the spot to check the water. The break according to telephone messages, is a serious one and it is feared that the entire levee back near Beulah is in danger. Cotton growers will be among the heaviest losers from the flood.

In warehouses and on wharves along the river thousands of bales of cotton have been stored, and it is feared that a large part of it will be swept away.

FISHERMAN LOST AT SEA; STEAMER HARD HIT IN GALE

Ship and schooner captain missing. The ship today reported the death of one man, damage to an ocean steamer and the narrow escape of her captain from injury, and a rough experience by another steamer in the storm that swept the ocean recently.

Captain Joseph F. Silvers reported the loss of the fisherman, the schooner, last Thursday on Jeffrey's Banks, where a party of fishermen were scattered in their panic at reaching at dusk in the multi-plied mist. Captain Silvers believes that the schooner was driven ashore and has a family in jeopardy.

But, the steamer was driven to the Holland-American line, which left yesterday on December 25, and drove days overdue. Captain John O. Hill reported that during the entire passage, his ship averaged only six knots an hour, and averaged only forty miles during a whole day.

The ship started the chain off the island and went on until it had lost its way, which caused the ship to wallow in the sea, and was very low, which caused the ship to be driven ashore.

The Red Star liner Marguerite, from Antwerp, with three women passengers, was five days overdue. She had a rough passage.

BIG RATS DISTURBED SLUMBERING JURORS

Army of cats and a process of rats were today ordered installed in the courtroom of the Boston Superior Court, following the report of a juror that during the proceedings there is a number of rats over the presence there of a multitude of rats "in the air." Jurors have found it impossible to sleep at night because of the rats.

BAKERS' TRUST TO BE HALTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—That the majority report of the Pabst "baker trust" investigating committee, the provisions of which is about to be begun in order to break it to Congress in February, will contain four striking recommendations is asserted by those who have followed the work of the committee closely. The proposed recommendations are:

The prohibition of donations through stockholding to various national banks; the strengthening of the federal examinations of banks by increasing the number and number of the bank examiners of the Treasury.

A provision in the banking law giving the minority stockholders the right of representation.

The prohibition of the control of nationally competing banks, by purchase of their stock, by institutions owned by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Committees have of California is strongly opposed to legislation tending to do away with concentration as it now exists. He believes that there should be further regulation of banks by the government, but does not think that the merging of institutions should be made compulsory.

AGED HINGHAM WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH TODAY

Miss Lizzy Cary, eighty years old, living on East street, Hingham, Mass., was burned to death at her home today, and her body was found in the ruins of the house.

GEN. SICKLES WHOSE ARREST IS ORDERED

The authorities of Simmons College are opposed to the failure of the police department to protect young women students, who have been molested and injured by men passing through the college grounds to reach their dormitories.

The college authorities are so opposed to the failure of the police department to protect young women students, who have been molested and injured by men passing through the college grounds to reach their dormitories.

Miss Alice L. Mansel, secretary to Dean Frank Linton Arnold, today declared that there was not a sufficient police detail in the West Bay Terrace to protect the hundreds of Simmons students and other girls and women who are obliged to use the subway to reach their dormitories during the night.

The only policeman who ever was in the parkway is a mounted officer, and his territory must be large because he has his very seldom. We never see a policeman on foot, all of which would tend to the conclusion that either their routes are very extensive or there are not enough officers detailed in this very important section.

It is believed and should be a patrol route that street neighborhoods, our young women of the college have been greatly annoyed and frightened by offensive men and maulers. The whole college settlement is in a state of alarm, and the college authorities are so opposed to the failure of the police department to protect young women students, who have been molested and injured by men passing through the college grounds to reach their dormitories.

HOLD GIRL FOR NEW FORGERY

Able L. Moulton, the Maine girl arrested in Boston for forgery, was given a year's sentence in the House of Correction at Deer Island today by Judge Bennett in the Municipal Court.

A few minutes later the girl pleaded guilty to a new charge against her, while William C. Terry, whom the girl had married, pleaded guilty to "aiding her" and was sentenced to a year's term in the House of Correction.

The accused couple merely glanced at one another and then each looked quickly away. There was no sign of recognition when a flicker of a smile between the two who were formerly the best of friends.

The girl forger was the first to be brought into the court. As she sat in the dock she tilted her head toward the spectators to hide her features, and soon rested her face on one of her hands, which completely hid her face.

ORDER ARREST OF GEN. SICKLES FOR SHORTAGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—An order for the arrest of General Daniel E. Sickles was issued today at Albany by Justice William F. Root. The application was made in behalf of Attorney General Carmody because of the failure of the famous Civil War veterans to make good a shortage in the money, large and valuable papers of the late General Sickles.

Attorney General Carmody explained that it is a Supreme Court action to recover for the state $22,500 in loss, which was the result of the failure of the famous Civil War veterans to make good a shortage in the money, large and valuable papers of the late General Sickles.

CHOOSES DEER ISLAND

"Do you wish to go to Deer Island?" the lawyer asked, going over to the dock and addressing the young woman.

"No," she said.

She was told it was a choice between the House of Correction and Deer Island. "Then I choose the House of Correction," she replied. "I'd rather go there than to Deer Island."

TELEPHONE TAXES ONLY JUST PLAN

Boston business and telephone men generally were much interested today in the remarkable utterance of Theodore Newton Tull, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the most gigantic telephone and telegraph company in the world, who said he welcomed the "Wire Trust" investigation ordered by Attorney General Wickham. He declared that he is in favor of an income tax.

President Tull said he believed the inquiry by the Interstate Commerce Commission would result in official sanction of his pet theory that a private monopoly of a public utility, such as the telephone and telegraph, gives the public the most efficient service at the lowest rates, he added.

Before government control or regulation there might have been some excuse for government ownership. With control and regulation we get all the advantages of government ownership, yet get that kind of public partnership and interest which is peculiar to a governmental character, which is within the functions of a government and is a privilege to the community and the individual against oppression, discrimination or rapacity.

As income tax is the only fair method of taxation, I want a graduated income tax with a high rate on large incomes. Such a plan should be provided for creating this tax. The richest, most powerful men in the country would not pay less than this tax just tax.

If such an income tax were adopted and all other forms of taxation abolished I believe it would be the greatest stride in progress this country ever made.

This is the only form of taxation that is equally fair and just to the rich and the poor man.

PROPOSAL FOR AMERICAN PURE FOOD

Representative Michael J. Murphy of the Second Suffolk District, has written the AMERICAN a stirring letter, urging that the fullest publicity be given to all legislative proposals on pure food during the coming session.

Representative Murphy will be a leader in the pure food fight that opened before the joint committee on Agriculture. He has introduced several pure food bills. He commends the AMERICAN's campaign, and calls on the commercial bodies of the city to line up, either on the side of pure and honest food or on the side of the enemies of pure and honest food. His letter follows:

Editor AMERICAN:
I have been very much interested in your pure food campaign, and I have been in the line which were introduced into the Legislature on Mr. Cassidy's petition.

There are such a large number of petitions, spread over so many lines, that the general public often does not know of the existence of them. If they are not so informed and are not urged to act, they will not act. I am sure that the people will support the pure food campaign if they are properly informed. I am sure that the people will support the pure food campaign if they are properly informed.

On such few hearings as have already been held, a few individuals whose pockets may be injured by adulterated food, have appeared in opposition. It seems to me that the only way to win this fight is to show the public that the food which is sold to them is not pure and honest food.

DISHONEST RETAILER SHOULD ACCEPT PENALTY FOR DECEITFUL PRACTICES

At the legislative hearing before the joint committee on Agriculture, on a bill to force the retailer to tell his customer the quality of cheese he sells, Henry W. Mansfield, secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers' Association, pleaded for more publicity in the matter. Harry P. Cassidy today shows how public opinion will force the retailer to take the responsibility if he sells adulterated food.

MOORE'S SINGLE LIVES

Thousands of mothers throughout New England are interested in the offer of the Moore's Single Lives. They are anxious to give away their babies to good homes. Letters come by hundreds to the AMERICAN every day as a result of the story of the mother's offer printed in the BOSTON AMERICAN. One letter to the editor comes from a respectable mother who wants to place her two children in good homes. This letter, with others begging for babies, follows:

Editor AMERICAN:
I read your paper of January 18, I notice that there are several who wish to adopt children. In answer, I write saying that I have two children, a boy of two and a half years and a girl of one and one-half years. They are both in good homes.

I write to you as you would send me the names and addresses of the people in Boston, Massachusetts, I live within a short distance and could see the people easily. Also, the people's names, from the Boston and Springfield, Mass. I enclose a stamped envelope for the people to write to me. I should like to have a letter from you. I will be very grateful to the AMERICAN, Mass.

SEEKS TO AVERT A NEW STRIKE ON BROOKSTOCK

HANOVER, Jan. 25.—President Tull, of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad and national officers of the conductors and railway trainmen are in conference today in an endeavor to avert the threatened strike of these employees next Monday. President Tull is confident the present labor difficulties will not be extended.

The labor leaders, however, said, on entering the conference, "We have not struck."

It is believed that, after hearing the arguments of the railroad chief, the question of a strike will be presented to the vote of the men themselves tomorrow.

Meanwhile the State Board of Arbitration, which has been in session since the beginning of both sides in the dispute between the conductors and trainmen and the railroad, in order to prepare a report for Governor Hall.

Here is another King who drinks. This is all softness—the laughter, love and dove-like murmurings of a little human mother, the dandelion-top head of curls, like so many little gold feathers, of that splendid atom called a “baby,” with his deep-creased wrists and knees and his little soft body, as warm (in mother’s language) as a little stove.”

One King drinks from the clear, cold water under the wide sky with the world of all live things his enemy—the other King, from cosy blue china, warm milk, specially prepared under his dad's roof-tree, with all his little world a kind one. In Boston English, "Every body for him!"

This is a very useful hint to citizens who have a few cents' worth of laundry, mainly washcloths, etc. Put some powdered bathfoam into an old tin can, and use it as a dust repellant. With a soft rag rub the tin to be cleaned with this mixture, then wash with water. The dirt will come off, and the stain and dirt will disappear.

Place glass or china, if to travel far in a straw or bag, may become slightly damp. This will prevent the articles from slipping and sliding. To prevent this, place a piece of paper at the bottom of the box or hamper. Let there be plenty of straw, and wrap each article separately.

When there is no shoe polish to be had, lemon juice makes a good substitute.

A few drops sprinkled on black or tan shoes and rubbed briskly with a soft dust towel gives a brilliant polish.

When dissolved, then after a few days and dry. A hot iron will not burn or scorch, but the iron will burn the future.

To prevent milk curdling, add a few drops of lemon juice before putting it on the stove.

To remove hot water.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMNER ST., BOSTON, JANUARY, 25, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND,
DAILY AND SUNDAY

PURE FOOD WE MUST HAVE--
No Matter How Hard, Or
Desperately, Food Poisoners
Fight to Prevent It.

The AMERICAN sincerely hopes that every one of its readers is studying carefully the articles by H. P. Cassidy that are published daily in this newspaper, on the POISONED FOODS of Boston and, as a matter of fact, every other city in Massachusetts.

These articles have for their object the awakening of the public conscience to the end that men now engaged in poisoning food and selling it to an innocent public shall be driven out of business forever.

The various pure food bills that are now before the Legislature have the same object in view.

In driving out of business the dealers of food, the HONEST AND REPUTABLE merchant, the farmer and the middle-man will come into their own, as they ought to.

Of the very large body of men and organizations engaged in the sale of foods in this city, the percentage of food dealers is small, and it is of vital interest to the HONEST MAN that the crooked individual who sells poisoned foods be put out of business altogether.

It is needless to say how the public will benefit if Massachusetts, that once led in pure food reforms, but is now the last of the States in the race, should pass NEW LAWS so that every purchaser would know exactly what he or she was buying, and the practice of selling POISONED FOODS thus broken up. The public gain in health would be enormous. And, on the other hand, it is safe to say that the loss to the poison food seller would be ENORMOUS also.

When the AMERICAN took up the people's fight against poisoned foods, this newspaper knew just what it was doing. It knew that it would be a very difficult matter to get through the Legislature in ONE YEAR all the necessary pure food measures that should be on our statute books. But it is reasonably certain that there will be SOME CHANGES in the food laws this year. And there will be more changes next year and every year following until finally Massachusetts will take the place that it once occupied—the leadership in all measures for protecting the public from FOOD POISONERS.

This newspaper also knew that evil-minded men, either those who are themselves FOOD POISONERS, or who are affiliated with that class of men, would attack the AMERICAN both in public and in private. It is no surprise, therefore, to hear these discredited individuals speak of "blackmail," "hardness of motive," "despicable," when referring to the AMERICAN.

There is not an individual in Boston who believes that the AMERICAN could be influenced in any way, form or manner to depart from the custom that has made this newspaper the leader of all fights for the people, and no amount of mud-slinging on the part of FOOD POISONERS is going to alter or change the policy laid out by the AMERICAN in this struggle against dishonest men who are growing wealthy by selling POISONED FOODS.

If any of the men now engaged in the POISONED FOODS business will realize that they have reached the end of the plank and that they must refuse to buckle in POISONED FOODS in the future, or be put out of business, the AMERICAN will welcome them with open arms and gladly give prominence to their CHANGED BUSINESS METHODS FREE.

And at the same time the AMERICAN serves notice on these men that if they persist in selling POISONED FOODS this newspaper WILL PROSECUTE THEM IN THE COURTS TO THE LIMIT OF THE LAW, WITHOUT REGARD TO EXPENSE TO THE AMERICAN.

If any person whose name is mentioned in the pure food articles feels that he has been wronged in any way, his side of the story will be given the widest publicity. We want to be fair to everybody. AND, on the other hand, we want FAIR PLAY FOR THE PUBLIC as well.

It may be just as well to notify the sellers of POISONED FOODS that this newspaper DOES NOT stand in fear or terror of them.

We expect to defend many, many, many suits in the courts. But we know when we go into the courts that we shall have THE FACTS that will and forever the business careers of the FOOD POISONERS who are suing or being sued.

The AMERICAN is not to be intimidated by cries of "blackmail" or "oppression" or "sordid motives."

We are in the people's fight for pure food to a finish. The FOOD POISONERS may put off their day of disaster and disgrace, but the end is INEVITABLE.

Pure foods and new pure food laws for Massachusetts are as certain as the rising of the sun. And the FOOD POISONERS are going to be driven out of business—no matter how long it takes or what the cost to the AMERICAN.

New England Now Knows Where
Governor Baldwin Stands

Governor Simon E. Baldwin of Connecticut and Mr. Henry P. Davidson of J. P. Morgan & Co. have treated the American public to some rare notions concerning the infallibility of the profits of high finance like Mr. Morgan, and their agents, like Mr. Mellen.

Mr. Davidson, testifying at the Money Trust investigation, was asked whether or not he thought it right for the house of J. P. Morgan to cause to be thrown out of the stock exchange those trust certificates of the Southern Pacific Railroad which, on a certain occasion, were not voted according to the wish of Mr. Morgan. To this question Mr. Davidson replied that he did not know the facts, BUT THAT IF MR. MORGAN DID IT, IT COULD NOT HAVE BEEN WRONG.

Governor Baldwin, Thursday, declared that the criticism of Mr. Mellen was greatly injuring the prosperity of New England. He said some other things also calculated to make this dose of strange wisdom

Domestic Influences
—A Happy Home
Is Man's Chief
Earthly Blessing!
Helps Towards
Achieving Success

By DOROTHY DIX

A WESTERN railroad recently decided to dispense with the services of all of its employees who had not happy homes.

This is a drastic exemplification of the truth of the Bible axiom that to him who hath shall be given, and from him who hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.

Certainly it is tough luck on the man who has a shrewish and nagging wife and a slovenly home to have his job taken away from him on account of his misdeeds, and to be deprived of whatever peace and comfort he can get out of a long run that carries him away from the scene of his misery. Perhaps the reason that trains are so often late is because so many conductors and engineers are not in any hurry to get back home.

And, however, from the surface crusty of such an order there can be no question of the wisdom of the railroad in making it, for happiness in his home life is an actual tangible asset that adds appreciably to a man's efficiency.

And this applies not only to railroad men, but to men in every walk and calling of life. Between the man who goes forth to his labor from a peaceful, cheerful, well ordered home, and the one who goes forth from a home that is a well of bitterness, and unrest, and strife, there is not only the difference between happiness and misery, but between success and failure.

Nor is the reason for this hard to find. We all have just a certain amount of strength and vitality and nervous force, and if we consume this in fighting home conditions we have not got it to give to our work, and the work suffers in consequence.

At its best modern life is heart-bragging strenuous. Competition in every line is as fierce as a fight among ravens. Every man is forced to work at high pressure, with every nerve and every brain cell speeded up to the limit. The inevitable result is that the end of the day to his labor the next day will find him exhausted in mind and body, and whether he goes back to his labor the next day with fresh energy and hope and courage, or exhausted and discouraged and despairing, depends upon the kind of a home that he has.

If he goes home at night to a home that is literally a home of rest; if he is settled and contented, and made much of until the very memory of the struggle he has received during the day are wiped out of his memory; if he can spend a quiet, restful evening over book and pipe, or with the friends he enjoys; if the face of his wife across the hearthstone from him is turned always to him with a look of love, and of understanding and appreciation; if there are little children who clamber on his knee and whose arms are about his neck; if, in a word, the whole atmosphere of his home is one of sunshine, and tenderness, and sweetness, it works a daily miracle for him and renews his strength and ability every time he touches it.

Such a man goes back to his work with a rested body and a clear head. His mind is not distracted from his business by domestic worries and anxieties. He can give the best that is in him to his labor without having to force back into a corner of his mind the recollection of the last scene at home. More than that, in his love for his wife and children, and his desire to make his home even more beautiful, he has the strongest possible incentive to work hard, and to do better work all the time.

For otherwise it is with the man who after his hard day's labor returns reluctantly home to a place that is a perpetual battle ground. He has to summon up his courage to put his key in the lock, for well he knows the complaints, the quarrelling, the hysteria that he must face, the unkind words in which he must atone for the miserable foot on which he must poison himself. His home life exhausts him more than the most fatiguing labor, and he goes back to his work with stomach upset, nerves on edge, and a soul saturated with bitterness. He is naturally untidied in mind and body to do good work, and therefore his judgment is impaired.

If you will notice among your acquaintances you will observe that when a man breaks down with what we call nervous prostration there is nearly always some domestic tragedy at the back of it. For one cause or another his home life is miserable. It isn't work that shatters health, it's worry. And as long as a man has a happy home he can do almost any amount of labor without collapsing under the strain. Happiness itself is a tonic that is worth all of the drugs in the pharmacopoeia.

Another reason why an employer is more likely to hire the home life of those in whom are confided great responsibilities is that the man with a happy home is seldom a dissatisfied man. He is naturally contented with his lot, and the temperate man that he was driven to drink by home conditions is not likely to be a true all the same. Many a man is driven to drink by the wife, or sent to spend the evening in the corner saloon because he has no comfortable place in which to sit down in his own home, or he tries to supply with liquor the craving that his system feels for the nourishing food that his wife's poor cooking does not supply.

Aside from all duty to the master, it pays a woman to be a good wife and make a good home for her husband, just because it adds so much to his efficiency and enables him to earn so much more money.

swallow more easily. But, stated in its naked truth, this is Governor Baldwin's proposition.

Mr. Mellen is the chief executive officer of a great public service corporation to which has been delegated important public functions and powers. In the conduct of his great public office he has not been truthful in his statements to the public, he has not kept his public promise, he has not maintained the quality of service of his public utility, he has not respected the laws of the State which created his railroad, he has defied public opinion in the policy which he has pursued, he is attempting to establish a railroad monopoly which is against the policy of our laws and which is producing a deteriorated railroad service, not only destructive to New England business but destructive also to New England lives.

We can criticize our President, our Governors, our judges, our Legislatures, our ministers, but when we speak of the agent of J. P. Morgan, we must speak in bated breath, according to Governor Baldwin. But it is well that Governor Baldwin has spoken his piece. His ideas on this subject are like a bad humor in the blood, better out than in.

The New England public know where he stands now and will learn with the most careful scrutiny any action of the conference of Governors which Governor Foss has called to formulate a New England policy toward this hateful railroad monopoly. Any plan which this conference submits and to which Governor Baldwin accedes, will need the closest examination.
